

Save the Date

[ THE SCENE ] Theater Lunchtime Look-In
"Disney's The Lion King" The KenCen run of the Broadway behemoth is sold out, and all that's left of this peek behind the scenes is a handful of tickets. But if you're dying to hear from the cast members and ask questions about life as a jungle animal, go for it. This brown-bag event (bring lunch) is July 9 at the Kennedy Center. $12. Noon. Kennedy Center Theater Lab, 2700 F St. NW. 202-467-4600.

[ THE GREAT OUTDOORS ] Yogic Maneuvering for a Better View As miserable as the outdoors can be in the summer, Rock Creek Park is always green and lovely. So a group of D.C. yoga studios (including Flow Yoga Center, Quiet Mind Yoga and Studio Serenity) and apparel company Even Keel have gotten together to host a series of free outdoor yoga classes in the park. Take 24th Street into the park and head for the grassy field at 10:30 a.m. on the fourth Sunday of each summer month (which in D.C. includes September) to get your downward dog on. Don't forget to bring a mat, a towel and some water — never get caught in a D.C. summer without water handy.
Free. July 27, Aug. 24, Sept. 28 at 10:30 a.m.
Rock Creek Park at the Connecticut/Cathedral exit.
For information, 202-841-9394.

Seek inner (and outer)
peace with yoga in the park.
